EBEC Aveiro 2021

Event description

EBEC Aveiro 2021

European BEST Engineering Competition (EBEC) is the biggest engineering competition in Europe. The 13th edition will involve 88 european universities reaching more than 7000 students. Organised in two stages (local and national), this project aims to achieve three major goals:

- Promotion of engineering through practical applications;
- Development of students in different fields: imagination, creativity and overall knowledge;
- Promotion of the communication between students, companies and the university.

EBEC is a 2-level, team-based competition, on 2 categories -Team Design and Case Study. Both categories are based on interdisciplinary tasks developed for students of technology. The winning teams from the local rounds progress to the national & regional rounds.

Team Design: this category consists of solving a given task in teams, within a limited time and a limited availability of materials. The desired outcome is a device that has to meet certain criteria defined in advance.

Case Study: this category consists of providing a solution to a technical or a management problem within a limited time with no actual construction of any device or assembling of materials. In the end, the teams present the outcomes they came up with.

My student status

BEST events are restricted only to students of technology studying in universities with a local BEST group. To assure this, local BEST groups will need to confirm the student status of every applicant of their university. Only once your status is confirmed and thus your account validated, the event organisers will take your application into account for participants' selection.

Your account is not validated for this season - you can apply now but your application will not be visible to the event
